This is another milestone year for AACAP. Our 60th Annual Meeting! I’m looking forward to seeing all of you October 22–27, at the Walt Disney World Dolphin Hotel.

We have a wide variety of submissions and some innovative topics too. As a reminder, the large majority of our sessions are accredited for continuing medical education (CME) credit—attendees can receive up to 50 CME credits by attending the entire meeting.

In response to member feedback we will continue to offer the following:

- Complimentary wireless internet throughout the meeting space at the hotel
- An improved Annual Meeting App that not only allows you to fully navigate the meeting without paper, but also allows you to complete all of your session evaluations electronically
- Data Blitz and Poster Docent programs to help attendees get more out of our new research poster sessions (see page 9 for more details)
- PDFs of the Book of Scientific Proceedings and Program Book available for all attendees

We’re also very excited to offer two new member services to the Annual Meeting this year!

- New Conference Enrichment Package! This year, all recorded sessions will not only have audio, but will have synced slides as well! See the back cover for details and pricing!
- For Annual Meeting registrants, a FREE, ABPN-approved self-assessment exam worth an additional 8 CME credits! Assess your level of knowledge regarding current psychiatric practice and clinical advances in the field and use feedback to guide your selection of sessions at the Annual Meeting.

We are pleased to welcome your families to our Orlando meeting! Please see pages 63–66 for information on discounted park tickets, general guidelines for kids at the Annual Meeting, and other Orlando information for families.

A heads up! The traditional schedule has been reorganized slightly. This year the Welcome Reception is on Wednesday and receptions and reunions are on Friday evening. As always, dress is casual for the entire meeting.

With important changes in the field like DSM-5, changes to CPT codes, and the Affordable Care Act, mental health care professionals can’t afford to miss the Annual Meeting. If you already know the great value of the Annual Meeting, we want to make sure that your friends, colleagues, and students do too! In order to make sure that as many people as possible can participate in the Annual Meeting, we’re launching a discount program where all members can offer up to two nonphysician colleagues a $125 discount off the cost of nonmember registration! Visit www.aacap.org/AnnualMeeting/2013 for more information!

Be sure to register by September 16 to take advantage of early rates.

See you in Orlando,

Gabrielle A. Carlson, M.D.

Left: AACAP Council and staff members look forward to seeing you in Orlando!
The juvenile justice system can be a complex one to navigate and in which to effectively maximize clinical care. Child and adolescent psychiatrists (CAPs) working in juvenile justice can have a profound impact on youth. CAPs also have the capacity to influence the way the system is structured and the way that services are provided within it. CAPs work with youth in the juvenile justice system in a variety of roles—as clinicians, advocates, expert witnesses, and consultants. In order to be effective in these various roles, child and adolescent psychiatrists must have the background and skills to address the needs of the youth and assess where there is a need for system change.

This day-long program describes the epidemiology of the mental health needs of youth in the juvenile justice system, provides practical information about assessment and treatment of mental health issues in this population, offers perspectives of several youth and family representatives, and explains the needs of specific subpopulations of youth. The program includes a three-part series of “nuts and bolts”: the first covers the topic of assessment and differential diagnosis, the second is about the psychopharmacology treatment of youth in the juvenile justice system, and the last outlines evidence-based psychosocial interventions. In addition to the clinical speakers, the program describes the experiences of youth and families. A youth speaker talks about his experience in the juvenile justice system as well as his experience with CAPs interfacing with the system. Attendees also hear about a model program for family involvement with this system. Lastly, a session on girls and sexual exploitation uses a multimedia approach to describe the problem of sexual exploitation and how child and adolescent psychiatrists can treat and advocate for these affected youth.

If you have questions about the Systems of Care Special Program, please contact Adriano Boccanelli at 202.587.9671 or aboccanelli@aacap.org.
Sensitive Periods in Brain Development: Implications for Child Psychopathology and Therapeutics

Research Committee Chair:
Melissa P. DelBello, M.D., M.S.

Research Forum Co-Chairs:
Judy Cameron, Ph.D., and Joan L. Luby, M.D., M.P.H.

Tuesday, October 22
8:00 a.m. – 5:00 p.m. (ticket)

Sponsored by the AACAP Research Committee and supported by the Research Initiative

Topics and presenters include:

Critical Periods in Development Across Childhood Learning from Monkey Models
Judy Cameron, Ph.D., Professor of Psychiatry, University of Pittsburgh

Re-Opening Critical Periods in Development
Takao Hensch, Ph.D., Professor of Molecular and Cellular Biology and Professor of Neurology, Harvard University

Sensitive Periods in Brain and Behavioral Development: Insights from Children Reared in Institutions
Charles Zeanah, M.D., Sellars-Polchow Chair in Psychiatry, Tulane University School of Medicine

Effective Interventions Following Adverse Childhood Experience: State of the Science
Philip A. Fisher, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology, University of Oregon

The Research Forum is designed to drive the research policy agenda for child and adolescent psychiatry by creating an environment that encourages scientific exploration and collaboration of investigators across disciplines. The primary audience is researchers, although others are invited to attend.

Sensitive periods of development are defined as phases during which experience has a particularly powerful effect on guiding, enhancing, or influencing the development of neural circuitry. Considering this, and the known powerful impact of psychosocial factors on risk for mental disorders, the identification of sensitive periods in social and emotional development represents a potentially powerful underexplored area in therapeutics in child psychopathology. Sensitive periods have been well established in several specific developmental domains including visual perception and language acquisition. Knowledge of sensitive periods of visual perception has effectively driven pediatric interventions in areas such as the treatment of strabismus and childhood cataracts, guiding windows of opportunity for more effective treatment. Given the relatively low effect sizes of many child mental health interventions, empirical studies that inform relevant sensitive periods may have significant clinical implications.

Currently there is a paucity of direct data that elucidates sensitive periods in social and emotional development. Sensitive periods are likely to be underestimated in developmental domains pertinent to social and emotional functioning given that they are associated with highly complex, and as of yet, relatively poorly understood neural circuitry. This research forum introduces participants to the most current empirical studies that inform whether there may be sensitive periods in human emotional development. Considerations for next steps in research and how such sensitive periods may be applicable to treatment models in developmental psychopathology are reviewed and considered.

The morning session focuses on animal studies that directly inform the question of sensitive periods of brain development. Dr. Cameron presents data that addresses the timing effects of early social disruption on later behavioral outcomes and neural circuitry in primates. Dr. Hensch discusses re-opening of sensitive periods in brain development using pharmacologic tools. Dr. Lee presents data from his studies of fear learning in animal models and in humans that informs altered synaptic plasticity during the putative sensitive period of adolescence.

The afternoon session focuses on human studies. Studies from young children reared in orphanages compared to those adopted to therapeutic foster homes, that indirectly inform the question of sensitive periods in attachment, are presented by Dr. Zeanah. Along a similar line, Dr. Tottenham presents studies of brain function that inform sensitive periods in previously institutionalized children. Dr. Fisher addresses the timing of preventive interventions and the potential role of sensitive periods. An overview and discussion co-led by Drs. Cameron and Luby consider the next, most important research steps as well as applications of the findings presented for therapeutic interventions in child and adolescent psychiatry.

Eating Disorders: On the Road to Recovery

Tuesday, October 22, 2013
8:30 a.m. – 5:30 p.m.
(ticket, members only)

Chair: Matthew Nguyen, M.D.

Co-Presenters: Mark S. Gold, M.D., Elizabeth P. Dizney, Psy.D., Kevin R. Wandler, M.D., Amelia A. Davis, M.D., Maria J. Constantinidou, Psy.D., Roxanne A. Hartman, Genevieve S. Camp, M.A., Amy Bucciarelli, M.S., Victoria M. Potocki

Location: UF&Shands Eating Disorder Recovery Center (EDRC) in Gainesville, FL

Sponsored by the AACAP 60th Anniversary Committee. AACAP thanks the University of Florida for their partial support of the Clinical Practicum.

The objective of this year’s Clinical Practicum is to familiarize clinicians with state-of-the-art diagnostic and treatment approaches to eating disorders and to demonstrate the key elements of a comprehensive eating disorders program during a visit to the UF&Shands Eating Disorder Recovery Center (EDRC).

This program opened in February of 2012 and has treated patients with eating disorders between the ages of 9 and 71 years. The UF&Shands EDRC program provides the traditional tenants of psychiatric treatment, including medication management, and individual and group therapy, while also incorporating various other therapy modalities. Exposure Response Prevention therapy is tailored to food challenges to help patients face their fears. Patients are taught Dialectical Behavior Therapy skills to help with emotional distress tolerance and regulation for both their eating disorder fears and their comorbid depression and anxiety symptoms. Patients are encouraged to participate in yoga and art therapies; art therapy facilitates emotional expression and insight, and yoga improves body satisfaction and decreases disordered eating attitudes and food preoccupation. As a dual diagnosis unit, the UF&Shands EDRC incorporates cognitive behavioral therapy and other individual therapy modalities to help patients manage their comorbid psychiatric illnesses, given that comorbidity can be as high as 60–80%.

The UF&Shands EDRC is located in Gainesville, FL, about two hours from Orlando, FL. There is a lecture on the bus on the way to and from the UF&Shands EDRC. Lunch and snacks are provided.

For complete schedule details, please visit: www.aacap.org/AnnualMeeting/2013.

The Poster Docent: A Guided Tour of Selected AACAP Posters

Tuesday, October 22
1:00 p.m. – 2:00 p.m. (open)

Coordinator: Timothy E. Wilens, M.D.

AACAP is pleased to once again offer The Poster Docent, a program related to the New Research Poster Sessions. The New Research Poster Subcommittee of AACAP’s Program Committee will select a “Poster Docent” to lead a discussion illustrating some important points on a certain topic. Like a museum tour, the “poster docent” pulls together the poster content theme, presents on how to view the posters to get the best understanding of the methods and results, and discusses how the posters move the field forward. Attendees can then view the posters throughout the meeting in the various poster sessions. Poster Docent posters are noted online and in the Program Book.

Previews from the Pipeline: A Data Blitz Featuring Early Career Investigators

Tuesday, October 22
2:30 p.m. – 4:00 p.m. (open)

Chairs: Tamara Vanderwal, M.D., and Thomas Fernandez, M.D.

Back by popular demand! Come see early career child and adolescent psychiatry investigators present cutting-edge research in a fast-paced, high-yield data blitz format. The Data Blitz features eight presentations that are each given in just seven minutes with three minutes of Q&A for each presenter. The Q&A will be moderated by a panel of well-established investigators and clinicians in child and adolescent psychiatry. Questions from the audience will be gathered via Twitter (a brief tutorial about how to use this social media tool will be provided). This program provides a unique venue for early career investigators to present data and receive feedback in a high-yield, fast-paced format that is specifically designed for new and developing data sets.

LEAVE YOUR SUITS AND HEELS AT HOME!

The dress code is casual for all Annual Meeting events!
FOUNDERS OF THE RESEARCH INITIATIVE SYMPOSIUM

Tuesday, October 22
7:00 p.m. – 9:00 p.m. (open)

Chairs: Neal D. Ryan, M.D., and Bennett L. Leventhal, M.D.

Presenters: Floyd E. Bloom, M.D., and Janina R. Galler, M.D.

The Brain Adapts All Life Long

Floyd E. Bloom, M.D., is Professor Emeritus in the Department of Molecular and Cellular Neurosciences at The Scripps Research Institute, where he was formerly Chairman of the Department of Neuropharmacology. He has worked in several of the major fields of neuroscience including membrane biophysics, single neuron pharmacology, light and electron microscopic histochemistry, event-related potentials, and human substance abuse disorders. Dr. Bloom explores how the inexorable waves of discovery and refinement in our knowledge of the human brain have revealed important insights into the brain’s ability to adapt functionally to the demands of an individual’s life events. Although the brain is largely formed by late adolescence, activity dependent modifications provide substantial adaptive abilities at all levels of resolution of brain structure and function from the levels of gene expression, synaptic and cellular circuitry operations and behavioral operations. This presentation reviews some of these advances most pertinent to understanding the disorders of the child and adolescent brain.

The Legacy of Childhood Malnutrition: Mental Health Over the Life Span

Janina R. Galler, M.D., is Professor of Psychiatry at Harvard Medical School and a Senior Scientist at the Judge Baker Children’s Center whose long-standing research interest has centered on malnutrition in early life and its long-term effects on mental health. Dr. Galler reviews evidence that has contributed to knowledge regarding the long-term effects of childhood malnutrition on cognitive and behavioral outcomes. The Barbados Nutrition Study, a unique 40 year longitudinal study of childhood malnutrition, has shown that malnutrition limited to the first year of life can result in long-term effects on mental health lasting over the lifespan, including increased attentional disorders and cognitive inflexibility. As a result, early childhood malnutrition significantly compromises life-long educational opportunities and earning potential. Adverse outcomes of childhood malnutrition can last into the next generation, even after long periods of dietary rehabilitation. Parallel translational studies in animal models have confirmed intergenerational effects of early malnutrition on brain and behavior and the selective vulnerability of the prefrontal cortex. Translational studies identifying critical periods of vulnerability and mechanisms underlying the intergenerational transmission of malnutrition effects may provide new opportunities for developing targeted interventions to improve mental health in underserved and vulnerable child populations.

1:00 p.m. – 4:00 p.m. (open to all AACAP members)

Hardly a day goes by when something doesn’t appear in the press about overmedicating children or metabolic side effects of neuroleptics. Child and adolescent psychiatrists have ended up in this difficult position for a variety of reasons. Lead by AACAP’s Program Chair, Gabrielle A. Carlson, M.D., these complex issues are addressed by a variety of people in this Member Forum. Regina Bussing, M.D., M.S.H.S., talks about the kinds of disorders and diagnoses found in “public sector” children who are the ones that are usually the focus of the concern. Peter Jensen, M.D., reviews the evidence-based treatments for affective aggression; medication and nonmedication. Gahan J. Pandina, Ph.D., talks about whether there are any medications in the pipeline for treating affective aggression and if not, why.

From the policy side, Christopher Bellonci, M.D., discusses federal legislation, state responses, models of oversight and where authority is housed for consent within child welfare, and the new National Collaborative for Innovation in Quality Measurement (NCINQ).

Jack McClellan, M.D., covers Washington state data and efforts regarding medication oversight for Medicaid prescriptions, addresses why this is needed, and why AACAP should lead the charge. Michael W. Naylor, M.D., discusses the Illinois model, responses from prescribers, and outcome data.

Presentations will be brief to provide maximum discussion between panelists and the audience.
Partnersing for the World’s Children

Wednesday, October 23
4:15 p.m. – 6:00 p.m. (open)

Plenary Speaker: Paramjit T. Joshi, M.D., AACAP President-Elect

The Karl Menninger, M.D., Plenary is supported by Ronald K. Filippi, M.D., in honor of his mentor, Karl Menninger, M.D.

Paramjit T. Joshi, M.D., AACAP President-Elect (2011-2013), is Endowed Professor and Chair of the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, at the Children’s National Medical Center and Professor of Psychiatry, Behavioral Sciences & Pediatrics, at the George Washington University School of Medicine. Following graduation from the Christian Medical College in Ludhiana, India, she first trained and practiced as a pediatrician. After moving to the United States she completed her training in general and child and adolescent psychiatry at The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, where she remained on the faculty for two decades.

Dr. Joshi is a Distinguished Fellow of AACAP and the American Psychiatric Association (APA) as well as a member of the American College of Psychiatrists. She has held several national offices at AACAP, American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology (ABPN), and Society of Professors of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry (SPCAP)—notably President of SPCAP (2006–2008), Chair of the Child Maintenance of Certification Committee at ABPN (2006–2011), and is currently on the Board of ABPN as a Psychiatry Director.

Dr. Joshi was the recipient of the APA's Bruno Lima award for outstanding contributions in the care and understanding of disaster psychiatry and this year received the Special Presidential Commendation Award from the APA for her commitment to quality clinical care, teaching, and research in child psychiatry. She has taught and published extensively on the issues of depression, bipolar disorder, psychopharmacology, and childhood trauma.

During her inaugural address, “Partnering for the World’s Children,” Dr. Joshi focuses on areas of her Presidential initiative that have to do with enhancing AACAP’s relationship with international organizations, collaborations and sharing of educational resources, making AACAP’s website more accessible to international colleagues, support for international medical graduates, and examining AACAP’s membership categories. Dr. Joshi wants to utilize existing relationships between AACAP and other child psychiatry organizations in order to facilitate opportunities for our members and to foster the global work of the organizations. She feels there is a need to continue to foster relationships and collaborate with other global child mental health organizations such as the International Association for Child and Adolescent Psychiatry and Allied Professions (IACAPAP), the World Psychiatric Association (WPA), the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF), and the World Health Organization (WHO).

Beyond focusing on enhancing existing relationships, Dr. Joshi wants to also improve communication and resource sharing. As part of this focus, Dr. Joshi plans on overseeing a needs assessment that will determine what current AACAP resources are available and take an inventory of what other organizations already have to offer and anticipate future materials that will need to be developed within the next few years. As part of this initiative Dr. Joshi wants AACAP to embrace the future from a global perspective.

Member Forum 2: Practice Parameter Member Forum
Thursday, October 24
11:45 a.m. – 1:45 p.m. (open to all AACAP members)

The development and dissemination of clinical practice guidelines is one of the most important activities for professional medical associations, like AACAP. Over the past several decades, the clinical guideline development process has become increasingly rigorous, in accordance with evolving principles promulgated by influential professional organizations like the American Medical Association.

Today, “guidelines for guidelines” have reached new heights of specificity and precision, generating the imperative for parallel changes in the guideline development process. AACAP and the Committee on Quality Issues, chaired by Heather J. Walter, M.D., and Oscar G. Bukstein, M.D., have addressed this imperative by developing a new clinical practice guideline development process in accordance with new Institute of Medicine standards.

This Member Forum is an opportunity to learn more about the new AACAP clinical practice guideline development process and the important role of AACAP members as active participants.
In this lecture, David W. Cline, M.D., Daniel S. Pine, M.D., and Stacy S. Drury, M.D., Ph.D. celebrate 60 years of the Academy and consider where we came from, where we are, and where we’re going.

Dr. Cline starts by discussing the story of the birth and subsequent development of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry. For a long time, adult psychiatry did not want us, pediatrics wanted us but only as a subspecialty of pediatrics, and psychoanalysis wanted us if we stayed within the principles of Freudian theory. It was the child guidance movement, community-based clinics, the establishment of the American Association of Psychiatric Clinics for Children, and the creation of training programs with standards that gave child psychiatry a basis and an identity. It was this base that made the establishment of the Academy possible.

Dr. Pine describes the transition from child and adolescent psychiatry’s past to the current state of the profession, as reflected in the Annual Meeting, the Journal of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, and other related activities. He highlights the tremendous strides that have been made over the past 60 years. Research on mood and anxiety disorders provide a backdrop, and discussions review the ways in which understandings of clinical presentation, pathophysiology, and therapeutics have changed quite dramatically through research in epidemiology, genetics, brain imaging, and randomized controlled trial implementation and design. As findings in these areas accumulate, the importance of child psychiatry as a medical subspecialty has markedly grown both from a scientific and public health perspective. This growth is reflected in the growth of the Academy. Finally, Dr. Pine closes by laying bare many of the lingering problems the field has confronted, including concerns about the shortage of well-trained child and adolescent psychiatrists, the scientific rigor of research enterprises, and the best path forward when attempting to move beyond the current, descriptive approach to psychopathology.

Dr. Drury looks at the future of child and adolescent psychiatry through a developmental neuroscience lens. Using the challenges and promise of psychiatric genetic and epigenetic studies as a foundation, she reviews the critical findings related to child psychiatry with a particular focus on both methodology and clinical relevance. Dr. Drury concludes by presenting the growing link between pediatrics and child psychiatry and the importance of strengthening this link, particularly given the increasing focus of both pediatricians and policy makers on the lasting biological consequences of “toxic” early life stress. The now well-established link between psychiatric illness and health outcomes across the life-course, coupled with the recognized critical importance, from all groups invested in improving child outcomes, of early interventions targeting prenatal and early childhood represents an unprecedented opportunity for child psychiatry to take the lead at the level of public policy, advocacy, and patient care, to leverage the combined evidence of neuroscience and child psychiatry to shape the course of child mental and physical health care.

Dr. Cline has been Chair of the History and Archives Committee since 1997 and is Clinical Professor, Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, University of Minnesota Medical School and Chair of the Department Clinical Faculty Advisory Committee.

Dr. Pine is Chief of the Section on Development and Affective Neuroscience at the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) Intramural Research Program. He has served the Academy in many capacities, including as a member of the Program Committee and JAACAP Editorial Board.

Dr. Drury is Assistant Professor of Psychiatry at Tulane University School of Medicine. She is also the director of the Behavioral Neurodevelopmental Genetic Laboratory. She has been involved in both the Academy and the JAACAP Editorial Board since residency, including serving as the John F. McDermott Assistant Editor-in-Residence.

Impact.

Since 2010, the Life Members Fund has invested in 22 residents and 17 medical students through its two grant awards: Educational Outreach for Child and Adolescent Psychiatry Residents and Mentorship Grants for Medical Students. The 39 lives you have influenced are and will become the next generation of child and adolescent psychiatrists.

Newly approved for 2013, 14 students and 15 residents will attend the Annual Meeting because of you! So, we can now say you’ve incubated 68 next-generation child and adolescent psychiatrists. This is what legacy means!

Donate.

The achievement to date is remarkable. But, let’s work together to double, triple, or even quadruple this number in the next two years. Can we? Why not? Children say this a lot because they don’t know anything yet about limits. Besides, who knew we could fund 68 in four years!

We are at a time of healthcare change when our skills have never been more important, but the deficit of available child and adolescent psychiatrists is growing. If not Life Members to lead in solving this deficit, then who?

From Psychiatry to Clinical Neuroscience

Friday, October 25
4:30 p.m. – 5:30 p.m. (open)

Thomas R. Insel, M.D., Director, National Institute of Mental Health

Psychiatry is a discipline in transition. The recent revolution in tools for gene sequencing and brain imaging confers new opportunities for defining the biology of mental disorders. As we begin to understand mental disorders as neurodevelopmental disorders, diagnosis and therapeutics will increasingly involve genetics, neuroscience, and cognitive science. This transition promises much better outcomes for our patients, but to realize this clinical benefit we will need much different training for our residents. This presentation describes some of the opportunities and challenges if psychiatry is to become clinical neuroscience.

Thomas R. Insel, M.D., is Director of the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), the component of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) charged with generating the knowledge needed to understand, treat, and prevent mental disorders. Over the past decade, his tenure at NIMH, the world’s largest funder of research on mental disorders, has supported large-scale practical trials, increased its focus on autism, and put highest priority on applying new insights from genetics and neuroscience to understanding mental disorders.

Prior to his appointment as NIMH Director in the fall of 2002, Dr. Insel was Professor of Psychiatry at Emory University. There, he was founding director of the Center for Behavioral Neuroscience, one of the largest science and technology centers funded by the National Science Foundation and, concurrently, director of an NIH-funded Center for Autism Research. From 1994 to 1999, he was Director of the Yerkes Regional Primate Research Center in Atlanta. While at Emory, Dr. Insel continued the line of research he had initiated at NIMH studying the neurobiology of complex social behaviors.

Dr. Insel has served on numerous academic, scientific, and professional committees and boards. He is a member of the Institute of Medicine, a fellow of the American College of Neuropsychopharmacology, and is a recipient of several awards, including the Outstanding Service Award from the U.S. Public Health Service and the 2010 La Fondation IPSEN Neuronal Plasticity Prize. Dr. Insel graduated from the combined B.A./M.D. program at Boston University in 1974. He did his internship at Berkshire Medical Center, Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and his residency at the Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute, at the University of California, San Francisco.

The Lawrence A. Stone, M.D., Plenary is named in honor of AACAP Past President and Life Fellow, Lawrence A. Stone, M.D. It recognizes his leadership, vision, and passion for the mission of AACAP. Mrs. Marnette Stone endowed this plenary in loving tribute to her husband.

PRESIDENTIAL INTERVIEW

Martin J. Drell, M.D.,
Interviews Back to Project Future Chair James C. MacIntyre, M.D.

Saturday, October 26 (open)
4:30 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.

Martin J. Drell, M.D.
AACP President, presiding

James C. MacIntyre, M.D.

For this year’s Presidential Interview, Martin J. Drell, M.D., talks to James C. MacIntyre, M.D., chair of the Back to Project Future Task Force, a presidential initiative to develop a “road map” for our field that can help guide AACAP’s leadership, members, and staff over the coming decade. In the interview, Dr. Drell explores the process of creating the Back to Project Future Report and the perspectives that Dr. MacIntyre learned as the process unfolded. They discuss the final document and what it means for the field: our strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats, as well as next steps for implementation of the various recommendations. Dr. MacIntyre has long served as an AACAP leader, including appointments as secretary, treasurer, council assembly representative, assembly delegate, chair of the Consumer Issues Committee, and member of the Bylaws, Financial Planning, and Gifts and Endowments Committees. Dr. Drell discusses these achievements as well as events in his life that influenced his commitment to the Academy and to helping children and adolescents.

In honor of AACAP’s 60th Anniversary, this distinguished panel highlights major accomplishments of the past 60 years in the field of school mental health and identifies specific opportunities for child and adolescent psychiatrists to engage with schools and school systems as we look toward the future. This presentation features commentary from thought leaders who have been practitioners supporting teachers in the classrooms to develop a greater sense of efficacy in being able to reach and teach children and teens with both acute and chronic mental health conditions. For child and adolescent psychiatry trainees, many programs have now cultivated a training experience where residents can participate in consultation as well as intervention in diverse school settings. This session highlights what models have gained the most traction with trainees, while also including current trends in school funding, sustainability, and how to “foster and maximize uptake” of evidence-based treatments.

The Power of a Gift in Your Will
Your Legacy. Their Future.

A gift in your will, or bequest, may be the most important charitable investment you ever make.

For so many people, it is their single largest donation. To the beneficiary organization, it is the source of capital that may be the difference between achieving a new vision for the future or not.

For your Academy, that means changing the future for today’s children with mental illnesses and discovering new treatments for tomorrow’s children. And, as child and adolescent psychiatrists, you are the solution to achieve this future for children.

Which means, you have the opportunity now, to change the world for the next generation of child and adolescent psychiatrists with a bequest. Your decision to include AACAP as a gift in your will is an investment in that future. Today.

To learn more about a making a bequest gift, or if you would like additional information, please contact the Development Department at 202.587.9660 or development@aacap.org.

Chair: James J. McGough, M.D., M.S.

With the tremendous expansion of the scientific evidence base, practicing clinicians require ongoing education on optimal approaches to clinical assessment and medical decision making for medication management. This Institute provides practical information for the practicing clinician. Presenters review current psychotropic medications and strategies for their use in pediatric groups, with particular focus on understanding the major medication classes, choosing individual medications within each class, and recognizing appropriate approaches to safety monitoring. Participants learn to identify changes in diagnostic classification based on implementation of DSM-5,* name specific medication in each major class of psychotropic drugs, and describe features of a safety management plan.

Adolescent Substance Use and Psychiatric Comorbidity: Real-World Clinical Practice Essentials

Chairs: Kevin M. Gray, M.D., and Iliyan Ivanov, M.D.

This Institute educates child and adolescent psychiatrists about the importance of early identification, and simple and effective interventions for adolescents with comorbid substance use disorders (SUD). These conditions frequently co-occur with mood, anxiety, psychotic, and disruptive behavior disorders. Left untreated, SUD rarely resolve spontaneously, and frequently adversely impact the course of co-occurring psychiatric disorders. Recent advances have helped to better understand the biological underpinnings of SUD and in the development of effective biological and behavioral treatments. Presenters review the relationships between SUD and other adolescent psychiatric conditions; discuss how clinical symptoms of SUD may present in youth diagnosed and receiving treatment for other psychiatric disorders; and provide guidance to clinicians about screening and treatment interventions. With information gained from this Institute, attendees are able to implement practical evidence-based strategies to confidently identify and manage SUD and psychiatric comorbidity in clinical practice.

Psychotherapy: Trauma-Focused Cognitive Behavioral Therapy

Chair: Judith Ann Cohen, M.D.

Child and adolescent psychiatrists are integral in recognizing, referring, treating, and interacting with other professionals who provide services for children who have experienced trauma, at home or in the community. AACAP practice parameters recommend trauma-focused, evidence-based psychotherapy as the first line of treatment for children with posttraumatic stress disorder. This Institute provides a unique opportunity for child and adolescent psychiatry residents and practitioners to receive one-day didactic and experiential training in the most scientifically tested and widely used trauma-focused psychotherapy: Trauma-Focused Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (TF-CBT). Participants learn strategies for referring traumatized children to TF-CBT, are able to describe and recognize TF-CBT components, and are able to interface with other professionals who provide TF-CBT. This “101” level training allows child and adolescent psychiatrists to immediately apply TF-CBT knowledge and skills in their current practice settings, and lays the groundwork for subsequent requirements for those interested in TF-CBT certification.

In psychotherapy practice, child and adolescent psychiatrists work both with the therapists’ relationships to patients and their families, and the important relationships in the patients’ lives. Indeed, psychotherapy is the most relationship intense aspect of child and adolescent psychiatric practice. It builds on the power of relationships to change psychological functioning. Advances in the science of relationships can inform clinical practice across the spectrum of psychotherapies. This Institute updates participants on research advances in ethology and attachment that shape our understanding of the role of healthy relationships and relational stress or dysfunction on physiology, epigenetics, and developmental psychopathology. With this background, participants examine and compare the relational focus and distinctive features in clinical interventions of maternal/child mutual regulation, interpersonal therapy, supportive therapy, cognitive behavioral therapy, and mentalizing-based therapy.

Lifelong Learning Institute: Clinical Practice Update and Lifelong Learning Module 10: Abuse and Neglect, Adoption and Foster Care, Custody and Divorce, Dissociative Disorders, Personality Disorders, Reactive Attachment Disorder, and Relevant Updates for Child and Adolescent Psychiatrists

Chairs: Sandra B. Sexson, M.D., and Andrew T. Russell, M.D.

This year’s Lifelong Learning Institute looks into Module 10, which reviews the latest relevant literature available on a broad range of issues and disorders affecting children and their families. Topics covered include maltreatment, adoption, foster care, custody and divorce, dissociative disorders, personality disorders, and reactive attachment disorders in childhood and adolescence; updates in autism, depression, anxiety, sleep, ADHD, and schizophrenia; and updates in psychopharmacology. This Institute is designed for all child and adolescent psychiatrists who are working on Maintenance of Certification, as well as anyone who wants to keep current with important issues in the field.

Institute 7 (ticket)
Fundamentals of Practical Pediatric Psychopharmacology

Chair: Adelaide S. Robb, M.D.

This Institute provides practical information to pediatricians and primary care clinicians on the use of psychotropic medications in their practices. The American Academy of Pediatrics has identified a knowledge gap in training and experience on the use of psychotropics in children and adolescents. Given that the Surgeon General’s report indicates one in five children will have a mental health disorder in their lifetime, this lack of training leaves pediatricians unprepared. Participants gain awareness of recent research studies in the use of medication; learn to recognize the main categories of psychopharmacologic agents used in children and adolescents; and identify the “basics” of assessment and dosing to responsibly use psychotropics for common pediatric mental health disorders, including ADHD, anxiety, and affective and psychotic disorders.

Communication and Language Development
Implications for Clinical Practice

Chairs: Susan E. Swedo, M.D., and Siham Muntasser, M.D.

This Institute reviews the current literature on communication and language development, highlighting the impact of genetic and environmental factors, as well as the role of risk factors on the development of language and communication disorders, including the development of behavioral problems and psychiatric disorders. Presenters look at the neurodevelopmental significance of communication and language acquisition in normal development and describe innovative research and state-of-the-art treatment interventions that may improve deficits and lessen their negative impact on children’s socioemotional and cognitive development. Recommendations are made in reference to early childhood and special education provisions that should be considered by policy decision makers.

Institute 9 (ticket)
Autism: Assessment and Management of Serious Behavioral Disturbance

Chairs: Matthew Siegel, M.D., and Bryan H. King, M.D.

Serious behavioral disturbance in children with autism spectrum disorder (ASD), such as physical aggression and self-injurious behavior, is a significant cause of morbidity and carries a cost to society. This presents a major challenge for practitioners, families, and health care systems. Clinical trials have focused upon the use of atypical antipsychotics, but typically only up to 50% of these samples are responsive to psychopharmacology. Improved outcomes may be achieved with multidisciplinary treatments, combining behavioral, psychological, pharmacologic, and communicative approaches. This Institute presents the most recent research findings of psychopharmacology trials and behavioral treatment trials. It increases participants’ knowledge of multimodal approaches to the assessment and treatments of serious behavioral disturbance in ASD—treatments that offer the potential for improved treatment outcomes.

AACAP’S 60TH ANNIVERSARY CHALLENGE

This year, AACAP celebrates 60 years. Not many organizations in the public or private, for profit or non-profit sectors, get to 60 years. While longevity is a milestone of which we can be proud, it’s 60 years of purpose that matters. We have defined a profession, and in doing so we have made children’s futures better.

Now it’s on to the next 60 years leading the fight to treat childhood mental illnesses. So, we’ve launched the “60. 60. 60.” challenge. We’re calling it the 60% Society. In celebration of 60 years, we are asking 60% of our membership to donate $60. You can donate more—$6/month, or a one-time donation of $600, or $6,000. Or, surprise us!

You can donate online at www.aacap.org/60Challenge. If you are writing a check, please make it payable to American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry and mail it to us (AACAP, P.O. Box 96106, Washington, D.C. 20090-6106).

Whether we reach or exceed this goal, the singular purpose of this challenge is to strengthen AACAP, which strengthens the child and adolescent psychiatry profession.

Donate today to help foster psychiatric research and to ensure that every child who needs a child and adolescent psychiatrist has access to one.

THE REAL WINNER: The children and adolescents whose futures you change.

Thank You!

ALL 60% CHALLENGE DONATIONS SUPPORT AACAP’S CAMPAIGN FOR AMERICA’S KIDS.

Lessons Learned from Sandy Hook: The Psychiatrist’s Role in Responding to School Shootings and Other Crises
Shashank V. Joshi, M.D., Jeffrey I. Hunt, M.D., Sheryl H. Kataoka, M.D.

Many American communities have suffered from school-related violence, and unfortunately, many more are likely to do so. This session reviews important ways in which mental health professionals can consult with schools following a crisis through engaging school administrators, facilitating the healing process of the school and community, and engaging the media.

Marleen Wong, Ph.D., Clinical Professor of Social Work from the University of Southern California delivers the plenary address on school-based crisis intervention. Professor Wong is among the most visible and well-known contributors in the area of school crisis management and has been at the center of support strategies for the Newtown, CT, community following the Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting in 2012.

During a panel discussion, David Schonfeld, M.D., presents on optimal school responses, including how to support the school community during and after the acute crisis period, and how best to deal with memorialization and commemoration.

Steven Schlozman, M.D., addresses how to respond to media requests and proactively engage the public, while also shaping a mental health and public health message.

During a breakout session, participants discuss the information that was presented in more depth and gain skills in the areas of effective responses and proactive strategies for helping communities to heal after such events. Participants also take part in advanced small group teaching that can be used with both adolescents and teachers.

AACAP’S OPERATING PRINCIPLES FOR EXTRAMURAL SUPPORT OF AACAP MEETINGS AND RELATED ACTIVITIES

While the Operating Principles is an extensive document that covers many details related to the Annual Meeting, some of the most critical points are:

- Commercial enterprises (including pharmaceutical companies) and other entities related to the AACAP Annual Meeting, agree not to have independent presentations during the week of the Annual Meeting at the host hotel or elsewhere in the meeting city.
- No corporate logos may be displayed outside the exhibit hall.
- No press conferences or briefings may be held prior to presentations at AACAP meetings nor can sponsors represent AACAP meeting content without specific written permission from AACAP.
- Companies may not contact attendees before the meeting to promote attendance at sponsored events.

Bennett L. Leventhal, M.D., AACAP Member Meeting Manager

AACAP has long been a leader in managing disclosures and potential conflicts of interest that can, and do, interfere with the objective conduct of science and clinical practice. By affirmatively developing and using guidelines to govern extramural support for AACAP meetings and the presentations of meeting participants, we are giving meeting attendees the information necessary to make informed decisions about the nature of scientific and clinical material presented at AACAP meetings. For more than nine years, AACAP has managed its meetings under the Operating Principles for Extramural Support. The Principles represent a dynamic process designed to serve our patients and profession, and maintain our scientific and clinical integrity.

As we develop and present our meetings, it has long been important to AACAP and the Program Committee that we keep content and presentations independent from sources of funding or other support. The Principles provide the framework through which members of AACAP, AACAP meeting attendees, and AACAP meeting supporters can preserve the form and substance of AACAP’s high quality scientific and educational programming in the context of full financial disclosure. As part of the submission process and registration for AACAP meetings, each presenter and attendees must agree to read and abide by the Principles.

The Operating Principles are only as good as the level to which we adhere to them. In this time of our own careful attention to transparency, disclosure, and integrity, you should be proud to have been at the vanguard of setting and maintaining principles and guidelines for behavior. Still, AACAP members must help in our collective effort to ensure honesty and integrity in our meetings, as well as related scientific and clinical activities. Please be familiar with the Operating Principles and help us monitor adherence to them. The Principles are available online at www.aacap.org/AnnualMeeting/2013. Your awareness and participation are essential to the successful application of the Principles. We hope you take pride in the Principles and your participation in the process.

Please report infractions to the AACAP office or Program Committee. Each potential violation of the Operating Principles has been, and will be, carefully investigated. Disciplinary actions have occurred, including banishment from participation in the Annual Meeting.

Thank you for taking this matter seriously. We hope that you will continue to support our collective effort. It is your attention to these details that make us stronger and leaders in the ethical practice of medicine.

Nursing Mothers’ Room

During the Annual Meeting, nursing mothers or those with young children have a safe and relaxing space to care for their children in the Nursing Mothers’ Room. The area is private so mothers can spend a quiet moment with their babies or young children. This area is open throughout the day from October 22–27, 2013. See the onsite Program Book for the location.

How You Can Help as an Attendee

- If you know about an event held by a pharmaceutical company during the week of the Annual Meeting that is not listed in the Program Book, please contact Jill Brafford, Director of Meetings and CME, at 202.966.7719 or jbrafford@aacap.org
- Let AACAP know if the following disclosure policies are not being adhered to. Contact the session monitor and note these on your evaluation forms:
  - All individuals presenting at AACAP meetings (including presenters, officers, discussants, etc.) must disclose any real or perceived conflicts of interest. This obligation is for all individuals who make public comment at any AACAP meeting.
  - When an off-label, investigational, or experimental use of a medication or other product is the subject of a presentation or discussion, disclosure of this status should be clear to the audience, both verbally and in writing.

AACAP Ethics Requirement

Programs marked with ETHICS indicate sessions that fulfill AACAP’s ethics requirement. AACAP members are required to engage in one hour (60 minutes) of ethics study every two years, which can include reading the AACAP Code of Ethics or Conflict of Interest policies or information on the AACAP Information Center, AACAP News or JAACAP ethics articles, or attending Annual Meeting or Annual Review Course ethics presentations onsite, via an audio recording, or online. This is not a CME requirement. To prove that they have met the requirement, members must simply answer the ethics question on the membership dues renewal notice. The ethics activity must be related to children and adolescents and it cannot be risk management. This requirement reflects the importance of ethics to the child and adolescent psychiatry practice. For more information, visit:

AACAP Code of Ethics:

Intellectual Property

Beginning with the 2003 Annual Meeting in Miami Beach, Florida, presenters and participants noticed changes on the registration form primarily related to intellectual property issues. After the 2002 Annual Meeting in San Francisco, California, several companies started offering free continuing medical education (CME) programs based on AACAP’s Annual Meeting. These companies erroneously presented these CME programs as if affiliated or sponsored by AACAP. The headline for the announcement was “American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry 49th Annual Meeting,” while the fine print offered disclaimers that AACAP did not endorse the online CME.

The AACAP takes pride in its rigorous development of our CME programs. For this reason, AACAP sought legal counsel which recommended the following:

On your registration form, you are required to sign the following statement:

“By registering for this meeting, registrant grants AACAP and its sublicensees the right to record his/her presentation, remarks, appearance, or other participation, and to reproduce and distribute such recording by any means and for any purpose without payment to the registrant. Registrant also agrees that he/she will not reproduce, distribute, summarize, adapt, publicly perform, or publicly display any presentation or accompanying materials, in whole or in part, for commercial purposes without prior written authorization from the copyright owner(s), nor will registrant use the AACAP name or logo in connection with any commercial use of such materials without written authorization from AACAP.”

At the beginning of each presentation, speakers are required to make the following statement:

“This presentation and the accompanying materials are protected by copyright and may not be reproduced, distributed, or summarized, in whole or in part, for any commercial purpose without prior written authorization from the copyright owner(s). In addition, AACAP’s name and logo may not be used in connection with any commercial use of these presentation materials without AACAP’s prior written authorization.”

“Can’t wait for my next trip to AACAP’s meeting.

I am never disappointed in the meetings. Always helpful to get together with others who are struggling with the same issues and sharing what is working and what is not.

I am very impressed by the thoughtful organization and administration of this meeting. The Academy does a wonderful job of making the meeting inviting to attend.

I enjoyed reconnecting with old colleagues and meeting new ones.”
