ECSII is a Practical and Powerful Tool

AACAP's Early Childhood Service Intensity Instrument© (ECSII) is a standardized assessment tool for mental health providers, care coordinators, insurance benefit administrators, and mental health advocates who provide services for infants, toddlers, and children from ages 0 to 5 in the U.S. and other countries.

You can use this tool with varying populations with mental health challenges, including those with medical, substance use, and developmental co-occurring disorders.

ECSII helps you to:

Create comprehensive, strength-based, individualized, and coordinated service/treatment plans that best match family and child needs.

Support active participation by child and family.

Measure treatment and intervention outcomes.

Assess treatment effectiveness at a systems level and advocate for needed services.

Speak a common language across a diverse array of providers.

Online Training is Convenient and Flexible

ECSII Training is Easy to Use and Practical

AACAP's five self-paced online ECSII training modules streamline learning and include features like sidebar menus, audio training with transcripts, glossary, downloadable electronic resources, and "practice as you learn" vignettes and case studies. The modules bookmark where you left off, so you can take them in short sessions, whenever you have time.

Enhance Your Practice, Measure and Improve Outcomes

Once trained, you'll use ECSII to methodically:

- Determine appropriate level of service intensity that best addresses identified needs.
- Review and consider a wide variety of clinical and non-clinical service options available.
- Communicate recommendations and monitor progress.
- Apply the Systems of Care philosophy and approach.
- Assess current status and goals.
